

Document Title: Working Group:
Implementing Alternatives to
Coercion in Mental Health Care

Document Type: Short bio

Author:

Date Created: 16 April 2021

Neeraj Gill

Neeraj Gill is a psychiatrist at Gold Coast Health and Professor at the School of Medicine, Griffith University, Gold Coast, Australia. He is an elected director on the Board of the Royal Australian and New Zealand College of Psychiatrists. He is the secretary of the World Psychiatric Association Section on Psychiatry, Law and Ethics.

Neeraj completed his MBBS and MD (Psychiatry) in India before moving to Australia in 2002. He worked as the Clinical/Medical Director of district mental health services in Queensland from 2010 to 2017. He worked as part-time consultant to the Queensland Mental Health Commission in 2015 and acted as the Chief Psychiatrist of Queensland in 2017 and 2018. He is a member of the Qld Mental Health Review Tribunal.

In 2019, he served as the psychiatrist member of the Independent Health Advice Panel (under the so-called Medevac Laws) appointed by the Department of Home Affairs, Australian Government.

Neeraj has been awarded the degree of Doctor of Public Health (DrPH) by the University of New South Wales, Sydney, based on his doctoral thesis on 'human rights of people with mental disabilities'. He has published many academic papers on human rights, mental health law and Aboriginal social and emotional wellbeing.