

Professor Dr Nazish Imran
MBBS, FRCPsych (London), MRCPsych (London), MHPE

---

Chair and Professor, Department of Child and Family Psychiatry, King Edward Medical University/Mayo Hospital, Lahore, Pakistan

Nazish Imran, PhD, MBBS, is a child and adolescent psychiatrist and medical educationist with King Edward Medical University in Lahore, Pakistan. She obtained her membership in the Royal College of Psychiatrists in 2005, completed her fellowship in 2016, and earned her master's in health professions education in 2019. She has also recently successfully defended her doctoral thesis on school mental health. She did her postgraduate training in Charing Cross and St. Mary's psychiatric training schemes in the U.K. She played a pivotal role in establishing the first dedicated child psychiatry inpatient unit in Pakistan at KEMU in 2012. Dr. Nazish is the chair of the child psychiatry special interest group of the Pakistan Psychiatric Society and a member of the WPA Presidential Working Group on Medical Students. She has a keen interest in research and has presented her research from Pakistan at multiple national and international forums. Her research interests include school mental health, autism spectrum disorder, and undergraduate medical education.